Independent Reviewing Officers (IROs)

We are professionals working with children in care and care leavers in addition to their social workers. Our job is to check that children are being well cared for and professionals are doing everything possible for them.

How do we do this?

The main ways we check that the council (known as the child's 'corporate parent') is doing what it should be doing is by keeping in contact:

We go to all the child's reviews and make sure these are done properly

We check the child's care plan and how well they are doing

We make sure adults take proper notice of the child's wishes and feelings.
